Villegas defends supervisor seat in June 3 ballot

West Sacramento's Mark Johannessen did not earn a spot in November runoff for Assembly race

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The ballots are in, and there are no significant changes in local results since the News-Ledger posted early vote counts on its website on election night, June 3.

Oscar Villegas successfully fended off a challenge from fellow Democrat Norma Alcala and will keep his seat on the Yolo County Board of Supervisors.

West Sacramento City Councilman Mark Johannessen did not make the runoff in the race for the District 7 seat in the California Assembly.

The election did not feature any West Sacramento city council or school board races.

Some key local results:

Villegas defeated Alcala 61.5 percent to 38.5 percent in the local supervisor's race. Villegas earned 2,670 votes and Alcala had 1,668. Turnout in the district is listed as 23.1 percent.

Villegas told the News-Ledger he took the win as an affirmation by the voters.

"I think they want to see the work I've been doing carried on at the county level," he commented. "They know I understand the needs of the community. They understand that I recognize the need for social services, health services, mental health systems, and the criminal justice system."

Villegas works part-time for the state board of state and community corrections. He was challenged in the race by Norma Alcala, a local business owner.

Alcala provided an emailed statement after the election in which she thanked supporters for their help.

"Running for supervisor provided me with a tremendous opportunity to meet so many wonderful people in the district," she also said, in part. "I wish Mr. Villegas the best, and I ask him to know that many fine people have placed their trust in him."

Alcala carried precincts four and five in West

Sacramento — much of the area just north of the barge canal — but Villegas carried the rest of the city's votes. The supervisor's district does not include a slice of northwestern West Sacramento, and does include Clarksburg.

In District 2, including Winters and part of Davis, Don Saylor ran unopposed. Matt Rexroad ran unopposed in District 3 (Woodland).

JUDGE OF THE YOLO COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT, DEPT. 3:

Janene Beronio defeated three competitors, earning 12,380 votes (or 53.5%). Beronio is currently a commissioner for the court. Second place in the race was John P. Brennan, with 17.1 percent of the vote, followed by Larenda Delaini of West Sacramento with 15.1 percent and Fredrick Cohen with 14.3 percent.

YOLO COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Jesse Ortiz edged out Sam Neustadt 51.6 percent to 48.4 percent (11,548 votes to 10,833). Ortiz carried the votes in every West Sacramento precinct.

COUNTY CLERK/RECORDER/ASSESSOR

Incumbent clerk/recorder Freddie Oakley, who oversees the elections department as part of her duties, defeated challenger David Schwenger 67.1 percent to 32.9 percent (15,381 to 7,540).

OTHER YOLO COUNTY RACES:

District Attorney Jeff Reisig, Public Guardian/Administrator Cass Sylvia and Sheriff Ed Prieto all ran unopposed.

CALIFORNIA ASSEMBLY, DISTRICT 7:

West Sacramento's Mark Johannessen (currently on the local city council) came in fourth among a field of five. Democrats Kevin McCarty and Steve Cohn finished on top and will proceed to a November 4 runoff. They're both members of the Sacramento City Council.

McCarty placed first with 34.7 percent of the vote

(13,187 votes), followed by Cohn at 28.7 percent, Republican Ralph Merletti at 15.2 percent, Democrat Johannessen at 12.4 percent (4,733 votes) and Republican Oliver Ponce with 8.9 percent.

Johannessen told the News-Ledger that campaigning for Assembly was an "interesting" experience.

"I was able to reach out to a lot of areas in the (Assembly) district that were very similar to West

Parents were summoned after this auto mishap involving juveniles in Southport on Friday afternoon (Photo & info by Peter Folks)

Four juveniles got away with minor injuries after the car they were in went into a pond near Southport Parkway and Marshall Road. The accident call came in at 1:18 p.m. on Friday to local police.

One officer told a reporter that the four were found walking away from the accident. The Ford Crown Victoria may have been travelling at speed, said an officer, when it left the roadway. The car lost its windshield and bumper -- and took out two Italian cypress trees -- on its way into the water.

Parents were contacted to pick up the kids at the scene. One of the youths had apparently 'borrowed' the rental car from her mother.

Unfathomable courage on the beaches of Normandy

This past Friday, June 6th, marked the 70th anniversary of history's largest military amphibious assault. Code-named D-Day, it involved over 160,000 United States and Allied forces and after five days of fierce fighting, the Allies tenuously held a thin strip of France only about 80 miles long. Within a month, however, thanks to courageous acts too numerous to ever properly count or acknowledge, more than a million Americans, British and Canadian soldiers were safely ashore and moving steadily inland towards Nazi Germany.

To help celebrate that long ago day, the Associated Press recently made available some of the original reports coming from those on the ground at the time, and in reading a few of them I was reminded of just how uncertain the whole undertaking had been, with the real possibility that Hitler's well-trained, well-equipped and battle-hardened soldiers would throw the Allies right back into the sea from where they had come. The stakes were incredibly high and General Eisenhower himself had told his troops before departing that the task would not be an easy one and that "the hopes and prayers of all liberty-loving people go with you." Hitler also knew what was at stake and even had a special train ready to go to take over personal command of all his troops if necessary.

Accompanying the men who so bravely breached Hitler's famed Atlantic Wall were an armada of warships and thousands of landing craft and support ships. Mountains of military equipment and supplies were also needed and they soon followed, as did the final collapse of the German Reich less than a year later in the spring of 1945.

According to an article written by Ian Phillips of the Associated Press, "German gunners poured over 100,000 rounds a minute onto Omaha Beach over a two-hour period after the landings began on June 6th." He also wrote that "9,387 American soldiers are buried on the Normandy bluff; 14,000 others were exhumed and reburied back home at the wish of their families. Pristine white crosses and Stars of David now stretch across a 172-acre memorial just above Omaha Beach, the deadliest of the D-Day beach-heads."

Seventy years later, the Normandy beaches code-named Utah, Gold, Juno, Sword and Omaha are still remembered with reverence, especially by aging Americans whose generation made the terrible sacrifices necessary to finally bring World War Two to an end. And last week, President Obama followed in the footsteps of past American presidents who have journeyed to the Normandy American Cemetery and Memorial to remember and thank those who died on what has often been referred to as 'the longest day'. In his remarks on a now peaceful bluff-top overlooking Omaha Beach, he reminded our nation once again of those who so selflessly established "democracy's beachhead" and helped bring peace to so many.

Of the more than 60,000 Americans who landed on the Normandy beaches, few were military professionals, and even fewer wanted to be there. They were farmers and barbers, railroad workers and auto mechanics, carpenters and teachers, and like all heroes, they weren't made in heaven, they were simply cornered some place on earth.

In "Hell on the Normandy Beaches", Ernie Pyle, the famous WWII war correspondent who himself would not live to see the end of the war, wrote: "By the time we got there the beaches had been taken and the fighting had moved a couple of miles inland. All that remained on the beach was some sniping and artillery fire, and the occasional startling blast of a mine going off and geysering brown sand into the air. That plus a gigantic and pitiful litter of wreckage along miles of shoreline, including submerged tanks, shell-shattered jeeps, and overturned boats."

"We had our toe hold, but there was another and more human litter. It extended in a thin line, just like a high-water mark, for miles along the beach. This was the strewn personal gear, gear that would never be needed again by those who had fought and died to give us our entrance into Europe."

"There were socks and shoe polish, sewing kits, diaries, and Bibles. There were the latest letters from home, with the address on each one neatly razored out — one of the security precautions enforced before the boys embarked. There were toothbrushes and water-soaked packages of cigarettes, and snapshots of families back home staring up at you from the sand. There were wallets, metal mirrors, extra trousers, writing paper, air-mail envelopes, and bloody, abandoned shoes.

"The strong, swirling tides of the Normandy coast line shifted the contours of the sandy beach as they moved in and out. They carried soldiers' bodies out to sea, and later they returned them. They covered the corpses of heroes with sand, and then in their whims they uncovered them."

"It seemed to me a pure miracle that we ever took those beaches at all. In the special sector where I landed our troops faced such odds that our getting ashore was like me whipping Joe Louis down to a pulp."

But on that fateful long ago June day in 1944, ashore those incredible American soldiers came, and those who somehow lived through it are now our fathers and grandfathers, and they are rapidly passing from us. But they leave behind a free and strong America, and their service and sacrifice can never be forgotten, or appreciated enough.

OBITUARIES

Dolores Savala

Dolores "Lola" Ledesma Savala passed away on June 5, 2014. Lola was born in Alvarado, CA (now Union City) on August 23, 1927, to Angel and Tomasa Ledesma. Part of a family of migrant farm workers, she met her husband, George "Goyo" Savala, in one of her father's labor camps. After moving several times, they eventually settled in Bryte, CA (now part of West Sacramento).

She is preceded in death by her parents, husband, and brothers Ascension, Angel, Delfino, and Marcelino Ledesma. Lola is survived by siblings Adelaida Noriega and Johnny Ledesma; her beloved daughters Hope Anaya and Sarah Najarro; six grandchildren, five great grandchildren, and eight great-great grandchildren.

She created a legacy of serving others from cooking meals for farm workers to working with the Broderick Christian Center's Christmas Basket Project. For many years Lola helped the Senior Meals Program at the W Sac Senior Center and was involved with the St Vincent De Paul food locker and clothes closet at the Holy Cross Church. She was a permanent fixture on the youth soccer and baseball fields, helping at the snack bar and cheering for multiple generations of children within the community who affectionately called her, "Grandma Lola."

Lola's life was celebrated with a Rosary on June 10 at River Cities Funeral Chapel. A Funeral Mass will be held on Wednesday, June 11, at Holy Cross Catholic Church, 1321 Anna Street, at 10:00 a.m.. A reception will follow in the Parish Hall.

to West Sacramento," he commented.

But he said it was tough to make headway in a campaign with low voter turnout and "no burning issues," and he waged an uphill battle for name recognition against the winners -- fellow Democratic city councilmen over in Sacramento.

"In West Sacramento, we're viewed very well as a community," he said. "But the council doesn't really have personalities (perceived) very separate from the council. We kind of act as a unit. In Sacramento, you have council districts. People tend to know the name."

"People tended to vote the names they knew, even if they didn't know about the person."

Johannessen's seat on the local council comes up for election again this November -- and he intends to run for another term, he told the News-Ledger.

U.S. House of Representatives, District 6:

Democrat Doris Matsui, the incumbent, came in ahead of Republican challenger Joseph McCray, Sr., with 73.2% of the votes (43,312 votes) in this primary. McCray earned 15,876 votes for 26.8 percent. Both will move on to the general election in November.

GOVERNOR'S RACE

Democratic Governor Edmond G. "Jerry" Brown earned 54.3 percent of the vote in the open primary, and will face second-place finisher Republican Neel Kashkari (19.4 percent) in the November primary. If Brown is reelected, he will be the first California governor to earn four terms.

Letters to the Editor

This is a summary of a letter sent by First 5 Yolo to members of the California State Legislature:

Fund the children

After years of program cuts to child care and preschool programs, including the elimination of over $1 billion in funding and 110,000 child care slots in California, this year brings an exciting opportunity for reinvestment in early education. The Legislative Women's Caucus and the Senate and Assembly budget committees recently adopted budget priorities for funding child care and early education.

First 5 Yolo thanks the legislature for making children and families a priority again in California and urges moving forward with a timely budget to the Governor that includes 1) increasing payments to private child care providers serving low-income children, 2) increasing child care subsidy slots, preschool w/wrap around care and part-day preschool slots, 3) increasing funding for on-going and one-time only quality improvement activities such as professional development for child care providers, 4) eliminating state preschool family fees and, 5) adjusting existing programs to provide and strengthen early learning and care opportunities for all low-income children.

A 2010 study by Nobel Laureate economist James Heckman demonstrated that every dollar invested in high quality early education generates seven dollars in returns.

Former Chairman of the Federal Reserve, Ben Bernanke stated "Economically speaking, early childhood programs are a good investment, with inflation-adjusted annual rates of return on the funds dedicated to these programs estimated to reach 10 percent or higher," and noted by Ross Thompson, distinguished Professor of Psychology at UCD in a recent article "The two distressing realities of the achievement gap are that when children enter school, the gap is already there," he continued. "The other reality is that school experience doesn't narrow the achievement gap, it widens it. So to close the achievement gap, to begin narrowing those differences in language ability, mathematical skill, other cognitive abilities, you've got to look earlier."

Child care and early education are critical issues for families in Yolo County, but the cost is frequently too high for First 5 Yolo to make a significant impact. Therefore, we urge your support to appropriate newly available funds in California to assist in bridging the achievement gap and providing equity in education for the youngest of California children.

City drinking water plant gets new name

City councilman Bill Kristoff (fifth from left) was present at the renaming of West Sacramento's water treatment plant in honor of his father, the late George Kristoff. The elder Kristoff was one of the activists who helped create a local public water plant to replace a privately-run water service.

Kristoff was a member of "People for Better Water" and served on the East Yolo Community Services District board before West Sacramento became a city. "People for Better Water" championed a bond issue to create a water plant.

That stuff in the bottom of your veggie crisper may yet have a use: check out new 'Trash to Table' tips

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

Are you tired of throwing away brown bananas and delegating unused celery and carrot tops to the compost bin? Do you feel frustrated comparing the mound of melon to the mountain of rind on your cutting board? Americans waste about 40% of their food, and up to 25% of that is at home. Fight the statistics by joining the Davis Food Co-op "thrift wizards" for a food waste reduction demonstration on Thursday, June 26, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Blanchard Room of the Mary L. Stephens Branch Library, located at 314 East 14th Street in Davis. Learn easy, creative ways to rescue the contents of your refrigerator crisper drawer, whether it's making a tart and flavorful grapefruit syrup, pickling a watermelon rind or discovering how to use a vanilla bean three ways. It takes a little effort, a lot of creativity and some chemistry to stretch a food budget and help save the planet. See how it's done, try samples, and take home the recipes!

This event is part of the Yolo County Library's 2014 Adult Summer Reading Program.

"The science-based theme of this year's summer reading program is Fizz, Boom, Read!," said Yolo County Librarian Patty Wong in a press release. "With rising food prices and increasing concerns about the environment, the Trash to Table demonstration is perfect for adults wanting to use creativity, combined with food science, to extend the life of expensive produce and other foods for the benefit of our world."

No reservations are required. The Blanchard Room of the Mary L. Ste-

Food aid

Those, such as some agriculture workers, who have been left unemployed or underemployed due to the drought can receive special food aid from the Yolo Food Bank. The Food Bank is distributing boxes of food (designed to feed a family of four for five days) to those who can certify they live in Yolo County and that their work has been reduced because of the drought.

Distribution takes place 7-8 a.m. on Friday mornings at the food bank warehouse at 1244 Fortna Avenue in Woodland (call (530) 668-0690 or visit www.yolofoodbank.org).

In West Sacramento, distribution is also planned by local partner Yolo County Children's Alliance. That organization plans drought aid distributions at 11 a.m. on Fridays, June 13 & 20, at 637 Todhunter Ave., #21B.

In Clarksburg, the Yolo County Children's Alliance will hold a distribution at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, June 24, at 32890 South River Road.

Food collection

The Yolo County Library system is helping to collect food for the Yolo Food Bank throughout the summer. This year's goal is to collect 2,000 pounds. You may drop off non-perishable foods at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue in West Sacramento, as well as other branches in the county and the library administration center, 226 Buckeye Street in Woodland.

Most-needed items include peanut butter, cereal, pasta, dried beans, fruit juice, shelf-stable milk, canned tuna, canned fruits and vegetables. Healthy foods such as 100 percent fruit juice, low-sodium and whole grains are especially appreciated.

idence and even the exact location of where each doomed fighter fell. His 2 million words of research reveal to readers his key findings, and make the exact course of the battle accessible. For example, he traces the mysterious activities of Frederick Benteen's battalion that fateful day, and why it never came to reinforce Custer's command.

Harper's manuscript has been edited to some 380 pages, but it nevertheless provides a rich, well-documented narrative that surely will become one of the definitive sources of this bloody event. It is exceptional historical reporting and as exciting as a well-crafted novel.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Rob the Mob" (R) -- Two stupidly in love kids from Queens stumble on a brilliantly doomed plan: find Mafia hangouts where the wiseguys have a no-guns policy, then bring a gun and rob them. Tommy (Michael Pitt) and Rosie (Nina Arianda) sit in on the trials of mob boss Don Gotti -- taking detailed notes of names and addresses. Their story gets the attention of a crime journalist (Ray Romano) who digs into their tale while trying to protect them from the inevitable.

It's all based on a true story from the early '90s. Since everything is simultaneously true and ridiculous, the film strikes the necessary balance between comedy and drama. Pitt and Arianda light up the screen with delirious love, getting the audience to sympathize with the star-crossed crooks.

"Enemy" (R) -- Jake Gyllenhaal pulls double duty in this psychological thriller. Gyllenhaal plays Adam, a prickly, half-awake history professor. By coincidence, Adam sees a face exactly like his in a rented movie. Adam goes a little mad with paranoia before meeting Anthony (also Gyllenhaal) -- a cocky aspiring actor who is totally and inexplicably identical to Adam. They are quite different in personality and lifestyle, but Adam and Anthony have the same face, and even similar tastes in relationships.

This twisty-turny brain-wrinkler has plenty of revelations, but very few answers. Gyllenhaal handles his dual-action performance with just the right touches. The film has an infectious style thanks to director Denis Villeneuve, who did great things with Gyllenhaal in their last project, "Prisoners."

"Repentance" (R) -- Tommy Carter (Anthony Mackie) is a magnetic life coach and motivational speaker guy. He spouts his ultra-positive philosophy pieced together from all sorts of spiritual beliefs, saying that others can be saved like he was saved after a life-changing car wreck. On the eve of his big book release, he takes on Angel (Forrest Whitaker) as a client for expensive one-on-one life coaching. Things quickly go south when Tommy tries to end the therapy. The plainly disturbed man holds Tommy in his New Orleans basement for a different kind of one-on-one session.

"Afternoon of a Faun" (PG) -- This documentary examines the life and career of one of the greatest ballerinas in modern times. Tanaquil Le Clercq started learning under George Balanchine in her teen years, and later married him when she was 23. Her shape and her motion set a new ideal for what a ballerina should have. Le Clercq came down with polio when she was 27, leaving her unable to dance for the rest of her life. Interviews with friends and colleagues are interspersed with glimpses of her on stage and in the studio.

"The Fights on the Little Horn: Unveiling the Mysteries of Custer's Last Stand" by Gordon Harper
(Casemate Books, $32.95)

Reviewed by Larry Cox

Gordon Harper was 20 years old and a minor-league baseball player when he mistakenly got off a bus at the Little Horn battlefield instead of his intended destination. That mistake changed the course of his life. He became so captivated by the site that he moved nearby and spent the next 50 years studying every aspect of one of America's most storied disasters, the defeat of Gen. George Armstrong Custer's 7th Cavalry at the hands of the Sioux and Cheyenne Indians in June 1876 in eastern Montana Territory.

One of the first things Harper noted is that the battle actually occurred along the Little Horn River, not the Big Horn, which was several miles away. The term "Battle of the Little Big Horn" has, consequently, always been a misnomer.

Harper spent countless hours on the battlefield, documenting the event from both sides, white and Indian. As he re-created every aspect of the battle as authoritatively as he could, he began to dispel many myths and falsehoods while establishing a clearer, more accurate account.

By the time of Harper's death, he had completed a manuscript of more than 1,700 pages. This work featured Indian accounts, an analysis of forensic ev-

Once Bitten, Forever Loved

It's that time of the year -- the season of the tomato! Red, green or gold ... sweet or tart ... but always plump and juicy, just-ripe tomatoes are what we dream of when the season is lean and the weather cold. And many of us, picky, and with strict standards about the quality of our fresh tomatoes, often just do without, or open a can and count the days. Yes, there are greenhouse tomatoes and hydroponic tomatoes, and with sunny weather somewhere, there's always a supply. Still, tomatoes at the peak of their early summer best are unmatched.

Although the Italians have been growing tomatoes since the 1500s, you might be surprised to learn that tomatoes are native to the Americas, specifically South America. The word tomato is a modification of "tomati," a word used by the Indians of Mexico. Many historians believe Thomas Jefferson brought tomato seeds back from Europe to plant at Monticello, although it's not entirely clear. It is documented, though, that Jefferson grew and served tomatoes at his Virginia estate.

Early colonists believed tomatoes to be poisonous, as the plant is a member of the nightshade family, which has some poisonous species. Fortunately for us, at some point in our agricultural history, a brave forager discovered that tomatoes would not kill you. By 1824, there were 17 recipes for tomatoes included in one of the first American cookbooks, "The Virginia Housewife" by Mary Randolph. It included a recipe for "Gaspacha," a dish from Spain. So how did it get to Virginia? Food historian Karen Hess says that Mary Randolph's sister lived in Spain and probably passed it on to her.

Gaspacho is a cold tomato soup associated with Spanish cuisine, with its beginnings traced back to the Andalusian region. Interestingly, a fundamental ingredient of this ancient soup, with versions dating to early Greece and Rome, is not tomato, but bread. Many early recipes for gaspacho are a white version containing bread, water, garlic, vinegar and oil. These primitive recipes represent a poetic example of the beginnings of the art of food, of making something delicious out of almost nothing. Around the 16th century, tomato seeds arrived in Spain. Since then, red gaspacho, made delicious with the absolute best tomatoes, has become the most popular version.

Like so many popular foods, gaspacho can have a bad image when presented as a bland bowl of tomato juice or an equally disappointing combination of chopped unripe tomatoes and spongy cucumbers. The real deal is a celebration of freshness and simplicity. In the summertime, when the star of this dish is at its peak and the heat can discourage even going near a stove, it's time to give my recipe for Gaspacho with Avocado and Bell Pepper Relish a try.

SPANISH GAZPACHO WITH RELISH

2 pounds ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded and coarsely chopped; or one 28-ounce can quality plum tomatoes, chopped
1 medium onion, preferably a sweet variety such as Vidalia or Walla Walla, coarsely chopped
1 large cucumber, peeled
2 slices of country-style white bread, crust removed
1 1/4 cups blanched slivered almonds
1/2 green bell pepper, seeded and coarsely chopped
1/2 red bell pepper, seeded and coarsely chopped
2 scallions or green onions, coarsely chopped

3 garlic cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon Spanish paprika
1/2 teaspoon sugar or sugar substitute
1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil
3 tablespoons sherry vinegar or balsamic vinegar
1 to 2 teaspoons hot pepper sauce
1/2 chilled tomato juice or cold water, as needed

1. In a large bowl, stir together tomatoes, onion, cucumber, bread, almonds, bell peppers, scallions, garlic, salt, pepper, paprika and sugar. Working in 2 cup batches, whirl the mixture in a blender until finely chopped but not pureed.

2. Return mixture to the bowl and stir in oil, vinegar and hot pepper sauce. Add enough chilled tomato juice or cold water, a tablespoon at a time, to make the gaspacho soupy but not too thin.

3. Cover bowl and refrigerate soup until very cold, at least a couple of hours or up to 2 days. Stir gaspacho and ladle into bowls, or pour it at the table from a wide-mouth pitcher. Garnish with Avocado and Bell Pepper Relish. Serves 6 to 8.

AVOCADO AND BELL PEPPER RELISH

1 ripe peeled avocado, diced
1/4 cup finely chopped red bell pepper
2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
1 tablespoon finely chopped purple onion
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice

Mix all ingredients together until well-combined. Top soup with the relish.
